Locals torn as Egyptian president serves notice

▶ Much criticized leader of 30 years says he will not seek re-election in September ▶ Hundreds of thousands continue to riot in eighth day of unrest

Word that Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak will not seek re-election this September divided those in Calgary watching the chaos yesterday.

Imam Syed Soharwardy, with the Al Madinah Calgary Islamic Centre, said he doesn't believe Mubarak's promise will bring an end to demonstrations by hundreds of thousands of protesters in recent days, calling it a "delaying tactic."

"I would like to see Mubarak remove himself immediately," he said.

Emad Adly, owner of Calgary's Son of the Pharaoh shop, approved of Mubarak's decision to relinquish power over time. He has spent hours each day watching events unfold in the country he called home up until 1991, and said the rioting must stop.

"He's going to leave in six months," Adly said of Mubarak. "We don't need to kick him like a dog ... He brought Egypt peace for 30 years."

▶ Shop owner Emad Adly approves of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak's decision to eventually step down.

Soharwardy disagreed. He said no promise made by Mubarak can be trusted, and "there is unanimity among Egyptians — enough is enough."

But Adly worries that if violent demonstrations do not cease, Egypt's economy may never fully recover.

"If we don't stop now, we are going down to the hole," he said.

Bandits hard up for OxyContin, take Viagra

Erectile dysfunction drugs were stolen by two thieves who robbed a drugstore early yesterday, when OxyContin — a prescription pain-killer — was unavailable, according to police.

The suspects, both in their 20s, entered an Ogden Shoppers Drug Mark at around 11 a.m. and, armed with a handgun, demanded OxyContin from the pharmacist. When none was available they asked for Viagra and Cialis.

"They serve quite different purposes," said duty Insp. Keith Cain. "Perhaps they believe there is a market for Viagra and Cialis."

But Liberal leader says he will stay on as member of legislature for Calgary Mountain View ◐ Stelmach praised Swann for his public service

There were more political tremors in Alberta yesterday when David Swann said he will step down as provincial Liberal leader after the spring sitting of the legislature.

Swann's dive came exactly one week after Premier Ed Stelmach said he would not seek re-election, and days after Ted Morton quit as finance minister to run to replace him as Conservative leader.

Swann, who has been Opposition chief for two years, refused to explain why he is leaving now instead of driving hard to make political gains at the Tories' expense.

"Let me be very clear," he told a news conference. "This decision was mine and mine alone, as is the timing.

"As we have all seen over the past few weeks, the political landscape of Alberta is in danger of shifting sharply to the far right. The Liberal party remains the only real alternative that presents a positive voice for moderate change."

ALBERTA JUSTICE REVIEW

Examiner review spurs legal concerns

A Calgary defence lawyer says he is poring through his files after an Alberta Justice review was launched into the work of a local medical examiner Monday.

Issues were raised about the work of Dr. Michael Belenky, who had worked locally for two years, by a fellow pathologist reviewing one of his files.

Calgary criminal defence lawyer Allan Fay said he is now assessing six homicide cases currently before the courts to see if Belenky was involved.

"The biggest concern is that an individual could be wrongly convicted," he said. JEREMY NOLAIS

RMS Titanic Inc. representative Cheryl Mure stands near a model of the sunken Titanic, which is part of a new exhibit at the Telus World of Science.

Organizers of a Titanic-themed exhibition hope to send the current Telus World of Science headquarters off in style.

Titanic: The Artifact Exhibition aims to immerse visitors in the atmosphere of the ill-fated ship as they travel through the 15,000-square foot exhibit, viewing hundreds of artifacts, videos of recovery efforts and re-creations of some of the ship's décor along the way.

"She was setting a new standard for Trans-Atlantic travel and, of course, she wasn't supposed to sink," said Cheryl Mure, vice-president of education for RMS Titanic Inc., which hosts the exhibition.

Visitors to the exhibition will be able to touch a piece of the Titanic's hull as well as an iceberg to get a sense of just how cold the waters were the night the ship plunged.

Numerous other artifacts are arranged in sequence to give a sense of the difference between first-class and third-class accommodations.

"So much thought, so much care went into it," Mure said. "This was going to be an unforgettable journey and, as it turns out, it certainly was."

Final exhibition

- Admission to Titanic: The Artifact Exhibition is $23.50 for adults, $19.75 for youth and seniors and $12 for children.
- A total of 290 legendary artifacts recovered from the Titanic's debris field will be on display.
- An estimated 22 million people have taken in the exhibition over the past 15 years as it journeyed to locations around the world.
- In all, 25-30 individuals have been busy preparing the exhibition since the science centre closed Jan. 4.

Housing, tunnel key issues: Mayor

Mayor Naheed Nenshi outlined two key issues on city council's plate yesterday during his State of the City address to members of the Rotary Club of Calgary.

Along with tackling affordable housing and legalizing secondary suites, Nenshi said it's time to move forward with the airport tunnel — an issue that's set to come before council on Monday.

"The city has not done a good job of advancing this piece of infrastructure. That's one of the reasons we've ended up in the mess we're in right now," he said during his speech.

Following his address, Nenshi said the plan has been on the city books since the early 1990s and someone dropped the ball on the project.

"I wasn't there," he said. "All I know is this is a ball that needed to be picked up."

285 The number of members in the Rotary Club of Calgary according to program director and former alderman Madeleine King. She said she was inspired by Nenshi's "homework assignment," in which he requested each member engage at least one Calgarian in his or her community.

While Nenshi wouldn't give an exact cost for the tunnel, he said waiting to build the tunnel would only make things worse.

"In order to build it once the airport runway is completed, it will cost anywhere from five to 10 times more."

The estimated cost of the tunnel will be released in the city agenda on Thursday. KATIE TURNER

No hopefuls to lead party at crossroads

After Liberal leader David Swann stepped down yesterday, one of his fellow party members said no one has emerged to fill his position.

MLA for Calgary Varsity Harry Chase said it's unclear who will step up to lead the party.

"No one has indicated any desire, and of course David had not given a previous indication of taking this step, so I have no idea going forward what decisions people might make," he said.

Lori Williams, professor of policy studies at Mount Royal, said the Liberals have an uphill battle to fight.

"Not only is there not a clear heir-apparent, there looks to be a lot of Liberals hedging their bets and certainly considering the possibility of joining the Alberta Party."

Local political blogger Joey Oberhoffner said Calgary MLA Kent Hehr has a higher profile than some but it's still unclear who the front-runner is.

"I would tend to agree that there really doesn't seem to be a white knight in the Liberal party."

Egypt's leader vows not to run for new term

President Hosni Mubarak says he won't step down immediately • Protests heated but remain peaceful

AMR NABIL/ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak

President Hosni Mubarak announced yesterday he will not run for a new term in September elections but rejected protesters' demands he step down immediately and leave the country, vowing to die on Egypt's soil, after a dramatic day in which a quarter-million Egyptians staged their biggest protest yet calling on him to go.

Soon after his speech, clashes erupted between protesters and government supporters in the Mediterranean city of Alexandria, and gunshots were heard, according to footage by Al-Jazeera TV.

Muabrak's half-way concession — an end to his rule seven months down the road — threatened to inflame frustration and anger among protesters, who have been peaceful in recent days but have made clear they will not end their unprecedented week-old demonstrations until he is out.

The speech was immediately derided by protesters massed in Cairo's central Tahrir Square.

Watching his speech on a TV, protesters booed and waved their shoes over their heads at his image in a sign of contempt. "Go, go, go! We are not leaving until he leaves," they chanted.

In the 10-minute address, Mubarak appeared sombre but spoke firmly without an air of defeat.

The president who has ruled the country for nearly three decades insisted that his decision not to run for a new six-year term had nothing to do with the protests.

"I tell you in all sincerity, regardless of the current circumstances, I never intended to be a candidate for another term," he said.

"I will work for the final remaining months of the current term to accomplish the necessary steps for the peaceful transfer of power."

Mubarak vowed not to flee the country.

Canadians not fleeing

Canadians in Egypt seem to want to stay rather than be airlifted to safety.

There has been a low demand for seats on three chartered flights that have so far departed Cairo to evacuate Canadians from Egypt, The Canadian Press has learned.

Of the 1,200 Canadians contacted by the Foreign Affairs Department, 150 were interested in fleeing.

▶ Canada's "Man in Motion" Rick Hansen outside his foundation's offices in Richmond, B.C.

Thousands to get in motion for cure

With a campaign goal set at $250 million, lots of wheels will have to hit the dirt

Seven years after Robb Dunfield was paralyzed at age 19, he met a paraplegic man two years his senior who was living nothing of the usual shut-in lifestyle. This man had wheeled the equivalent of two marathons that day.

Rick Hansen wore ice packs like bandages over his throbbing shoulders and hands — but his eyes sparkled.

"This guy is special, it doesn't matter he's in a chair," Dunfield thought to himself, a stark contrast to an earlier view that the man rolling his way around the world was just plain crazy.

The impression stuck and it swayed millions more who rooted for Hansen as the extreme athlete propelled himself to national hero status.

12,000 The relay will cover 12,000 kilometres as it passes through more than 600 communities and territories culminating — just like 25 years ago — in Vancouver.

Hansen charted an enduring course for changing attitudes around people with disabilities and advancing medicine for spinal chord injury.

A quarter-century later, Hansen is aiming to galvanize a new generation of Canadians by embarking on what he considers only "symbolically halfway" in his life's work towards generating a cure.

On Aug. 24, Hansen launches a cross-Canada relay of 7,000 people from Cape Spear, N.L., tracing virtually the same route as his original Man in Motion tour. Most participants will be selected through an online contest in the spring that lauds people who've made meaningful contributions to their community.

"The tour was over, but the cure and accessible communities had just begun," Hansen reflected in a recent interview. "The challenge I gave to people at BC Place, when there was 50,000 people at the end, was 'I've started this movement, but it's your turn.'" THE CANADIAN PRESS

BORDER THREAT

U.S. gripes on north border security

A new report by the watchdog arm of U.S. Congress found only a scant few kilometres of the Canada-U.S. border are secure, raising fresh concerns about terrorists bent on American destruction crossing unnoticed. The threat on the northern border is higher than the U.S.-Mexico boundary because of "the limited law enforcement coverage," said the report.

"The American people are grossly under-protected along our northern border," said Joe Lieberman, chairman of the U.S. Senate's Homeland Security Committee.

The report's release came as Prime Minister Stephen Harper's office announced he would travel to the U.S. capital on Friday to meet with President Barack Obama. Perimeter security is expected to be on the agenda. THE CANADIAN PRESS

BCE: Buyout prevents lock on TV content

BCE Inc. says it's willing to sell video content to competitors if the CRTC approves its $1.3-billion purchase of CTV, but the Montreal-based telecom company wants its rivals to do the same kind of deal-making.

Chief executive George Cope said yesterday that BCE moved to buy majority control of CTV last fall to ensure that cable companies didn't have a lock on content.

"We don't want to buy all of our supply from our competitors," Cope told the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission.

BCE, the parent company of Bell Canada, wants to put video content including television, sports and news programs, not only on its CTV television services but also on personal computers, tablets and smartphones.

Cope said BCE wanted to stop cable companies such as Rogers and Quebecor Inc. from owning all of the content through their extensive media businesses.

Cope said he expects a level playing field.

"I will tell you with certainty if we don't see reciprocity from other content suppliers — we will act accordingly," Cope told the hearing, available via webcast.

Hearings

- Purchase The CRTC is holding hearings this week to determine whether it will give regulatory approval to BCE's purchase of CTV.
- Competitors CRTC chairman Konrad von Finckenstein asked BCE chief executive George Cope if BCE would hold back content from its competitors.
- Cope said that from "time to time" BCE may have exclusive arrangements with content suppliers, noting how Bell's wireless service provides exclusive access to NFL football games, but added that BCE wouldn't behave in an anti-competitive way.

"Our strategy, quite frankly, was to make sure that the content industry wasn't 100 per cent controlled by the cable industry."

Usage-based billing limits choice: Liberals

Petition on OpenMedia.ca pushes against CRTC decision Harper, too, gives a tweet

The federal Liberals are opposing a CRTC decision they say will allow major Internet service providers to put a cap on how much data consumers can download and ultimately lead to higher Internet rates.

The Liberals say the decision, which allows usage-based billing to go ahead, limits competition and choice for consumers.

An online petition with more than 200,000 has bombarded Industry Minister Tony Clement with thousands of messages urging the minister to take a look at the decision and overturn the ruling.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper joined that chorus yesterday — on Twitter, no less (@pmharper).

"We're very concerned about CRTC's decision on usage-based billing and its impact on consumers," Harper tweeted. "I've asked for a review of the decision."

ONLY THE SHADOW KNOWS THE WEATHER

Just sayin'

PAUL SULLIVAN

Hey, it's Groundhog Day today!

Here's the deal. If the groundhog sticks his nose out of his burrow this morning and sees his shadow, for some reason that means six more weeks of winter, and he hurries back into his burrow and tweets all his woodland buddies: "It's too freaking cold out there. High pressure ridge. Stay inside. Avoid large raptors. Brrr. @Rodent."

If, on the other hand, there's no shadow, it's safe to come out since spring is just around the corner. Righhht.

The groundhog first dabbled in meteorology in 1887 in Pennsylvania with Punxsutawney Phil and his various descendents (groundhogs don't live very long), but not to be outdone, Canada has its own groundhog, Wiarton Willie, who's been doing the same trick for 55 years. And Gaspé even has its own groundhog, fred la marmotte, so the weather is badly predicted in both official languages.

"... and he hurries back into his burrow and tweets all his woodland buddies ..."

It doesn't matter that the fat little critter can't predict the weather, or anything else for that matter (uh, he's a rodent?), because it's a tradition. And you don't mess with tradition, no matter how dopey. It has its roots in Candlemas, which is the midpoint between the winter solstice and the spring equinox, as good a time as any for an outbreak of foolishness.

And it doesn't get any dopier than Groundhog Day. Same time every year, Feb. 2, just when winter starts to drag a little (except here on the West Coast, when it's time for the snowdrops and crocuses to start peeking their heads above the ground ... bwahah-ha), the media on both sides of the border lose their minds for a day and run front page photos of Fat Phil and Wide Willie as they "predict" the weather.

It's probably the groundhog equivalent of winning the lottery: Free snacks, although you might wish for a time before the paparazzi when life was simple — just a warm hole in the ground, a tasty stolen turnip, snuggling up to your favourite ground, uh, sow.

Being a rodent and a practical mammal, you're probably wondering what the fuss is all about. I mean, what is it with the animal prediction racket? Look at Paul the Octopus. He's got his own memorial in Germany for accurately predicting soccer's World Cup results.

Which is more than you can say about the groundhog. The shocking truth is that since 1988, Phil has been "wrong" 13 times and "right" only 10. With a record like that, he could be a broker.

We asked: Who is today's most overrated band or singer?

@arnemitchell: AC/DC most overrated hands down.
@WillSturdy: Kings Of Leon, easily. Great band that hasn't done anything new except complain about how great they are.
@PXAbstraction: Nickelback without a doubt. Generic, bland, unoriginal, commercial, yet they think they are geniuses.
@sarb28: Kiss. All their songs suck.
@sergio115: Most overrated solo artist ... Ke$ha, Katy Perry, Justin Bieber. Pretty much all the pop out there. Where's the talent?!?
@lauraaeliz: def gotta say justin bieber ... I'm scared to see the streets of T.O. today. Maybe the storm will wipe out all the fans.
@dpsouthcalgary: Gotta be Kanye West.
@jla30: Where do I start?? Bieber, Drake, Ke$ha, Rihanna, Usher, Eminem, Nickelback ...
@dallasthumper: Bono or Sting — dear God they need to learn how to sing.
@sprogsca: Nickelback!!!! They suck. And then ABBA.
@dubstf: Taylor Swift. Kanye was so right! Her squinty face & annoying teenage angsty songs are BS.
@riteandan: Coldplay, Nickelback, Justin Bieber, WAY too MANY to name here!
@mqasim13: Justin Bieber, nothing more needs to be said.

Metro Minute at Autumn Gold

Age is just a number — that's the message behind a documentary being screened at the Plaza Theatre tonight. Autumn Gold, directed by Jan Tenhaven, follows five athletes between the ages of 80 and 100 as they encounter numerous hurdles while attempting to qualify for the track and field world championships.

The film has received numerous accolades, including the grand prize of the jury at the Guangzhou International Documentary Film Festival and was also chosen as an opening night selection at last year's Canadian Sport Film Festival. It is being presented by the Calgary International Film Festival as part of its Doc Soup series. The film gets underway at 7 p.m. METRO

Drake finding lots of Juno award love

Juno host Drake leads with six nods heading into this year's show
Bieber up for Artist of the Year

It'll be all about Drake at this year's Juno Awards.

The 24-year-old Toronto rapper is hosting the Mar. 27 bash and is also the leading nominee.

He's up for six trophies: album of the year, artist of the year, songwriter of the year, single of the year, rap recording of the year and the Juno fan choice award.

Teen phenom Justin Bieber, who grew up in Stratford, Ont., also scored multiple nominations, as did Montreal's Arcade Fire.

Drake, Bieber and Arcade Fire are also up for prizes at the Grammy Awards later this month.

All three received Juno nominations for album of the year. Rounding out that category is Hedley and country singer Johnny Reid.

Bieber, who was in Toronto yesterday promoting a new 3D documentary about his career, also got Juno nods for artist of the year and pop album of the year.

Artists scheduled to perform at the Junos include Arcade Fire, Broken Social Scene and Hedley.

There are 82 first-time Juno nominees this year.

The Junos, which honour the best in Canadian music, have been held in various cities in recent years, but are returning to Toronto to mark their 40th anniversary.

Shania Twain is set to be inducted into the Canadian Music Hall of Fame at the ceremony, and legendary rocker Neil Young will be recognized for his humanitarian work.

RICHARD CROUSE

CLAN OF THE CAVE MOVIE

Savvy filmmakers tap into our bottomless appetite for the terrors of a black hole

In the new 3D film Sanctum, a group of cave divers get their spelunk on in the least accessible cave system on Earth. Down deep they run into problems and end up in a fight for their lives.

If that synopsis sounds familiar, it should. Most cave movies have similar plots. Here's the typical rundown: A group of people jump into a giant hole and really bad things happen. Usually at least one of the characters says, "It's so deep ... you can't even see the bottom," just before they disappear forever.

The most frightening cave movie has to be The Descent, a 2005 spelunker in which six women trapped in an Appalachian cave system are hunted by pasty humanoid creatures. Horror website Bloody Disgusting ranked it as one of the top horror films of the decade. (The sequel, imaginatively titled The Descent: Part 2, wasn't nearly as bloodcurdling.)

The year 2005 was a big one for creepy cave movies. The Cave, starring Piper Perabo and Cole Hauser as cavers who are stalked by bloodthirsty creatures, offers some genuinely terrifying moments. Then there's WithIN (also 2005). And don't forget the subterranean thriller What Waits Below (1984).

Why do people like Sanctum producer James Cameron keep making these movies? And why do we keep coming back for more? I think it's because they're about the most primal feelings of all: claustrophobia, fear of the dark and the unknown. After all, what could be scarier than a giant hole with who-knows-what lurking in its depths?

Sheen barred from seeing daughters

- Actor's ex-wife at wit's end over latest antics
- Sitcom star reportedly asked porn star to babysit kids

▶ Denise Richards, with daughters Sam and Lola Rose, at an AIDS benefit in 2010.

Denise Richards has reportedly reached the breaking point when it comes to ex-husband Charlie Sheen and has barred him from seeing their daughters until he completes rehab, according to Popeater.

What did it was apparently porn star Kacey Jordan's admission on Good Morning America that Sheen asked her to babysit his kids.

"Denise has had enough," a source says. "All this time she has been trying to protect Charlie in the eyes of his daughters, limiting what they know about his partying ways, but now she knows it's the girls that need protecting, not Charlie." METRO

Despite public complaints about Ricky Gervais' performance and reports that he was banned from future appearances, the folks behind the Golden Globes apparently want the British comic back next year.

"The ratings went up again, and the organizers asked me to consider a third year," Gervais reveals to Heat magazine.

"I don't think I should. I don't know what I could do better. I certainly couldn't get more press for them, that's for sure." METRO

Kate: Rock that frock

One of the biggest questions surrounding Kate Middleton's April 29 nuptials with Prince William is what colour her dress will be. "White is a tough colour to pull off, so I'm sure both bride and designer are talking about cream and ivory as well," a source tells Popeater. "Kate certainly takes fashion risks. When she attended a friend's wedding a few weeks ago she wore black and no bra. Anyone expecting a boring dress for her big day or boring white should think again." METRO

Discover Florida's best kept secret

Locals have kept Emerald Coast under wraps for years Surf town U.S.A. meets New England in these colourful beachside communities

GIZELLE LAU
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

One of Florida's hidden gems is far from the bright lights of Miami's South Beach or the amusement park wonderland of Orlando.

Here, wispy sand dunes protect the white shores that are so white that, at a glance, you could swear you're looking at mounds of snow — that is, until you remind yourself that you're in Florida.

Welcome to the beaches of the Emerald Coast in northwest Florida — a region made up of several beachside destinations right on the Gulf Coast that local Florida natives have tried to keep under wraps for decades. They may have gotten away with it, too — until the Obama's visited the region's Panama City Beach in August and the tourism board's website received 8 billion views within 36 hours.

GIZELLE LAU

▶ Region boasts white-sand beaches and dunes.

From Panama City to the beaches of Fort Walton, Destin and Pensacola, the atmosphere is "white-picket fence" meets "surf town U.S.A." with a New England passion for fresh seafood, finished with a unique twist of southern hospitality.

GIZELLE LAU

▶ Learn to surf at St. Andrew's State Park.

GIZELLE LAU

▶ Don't miss Seaside, where trailers sell cupcakes, shakes and grilled cheese sandwiches.

Vacation like the Obamas in Panama City Beach by staying at the Bay Point Marriott Golf Resort & Spa. Discover the outlet shops at Pier Park, try your hand at surfing at St. Andrew's State Park, and head to Firefly restaurant for the beach's best She Crab Soup with a side of fried Apalachicola Oysters.

Don't miss the town of Seaside where the Truman Show was filmed — its picturesque trailers selling cupcakes, specialty grilled cheese sandwiches and organic shakes — or Grayton Beach State Park where you can go for eco tours, hikes through sand dunes or YOLO boarding (stand-up paddle boarding that originated in this area).

If you're into fishing, then Destin is the place for you. Known as the "world's luckiest fishing village," Destin has the largest charter fishing fleet in all of Florida.

Here, you can fish for grouper, tuna, marlin or red snapper in the morning and take your catch to Destin's Fisherman's Wharf Seafood House where it will be grilled, broiled or blackened for lunch.

Pensacola is the historic capital of the region where you can enjoy the beach in the morning and explore the sights in the afternoon. Discover historical Fort Barrancas built in 1797 and the National Naval Aviation Museum's incredible collection of aircrafts, or go for a tour of the Historic Pensacola Village.

Hotel options range from Hiltons to Hampton Inns or the luxury Portofino Resort & Spa, where you can finish off the day with a visit to the spa. The Fish House offers delicious seafood and the chef's specialty is Grits a Ya Ya: smoked gouda cheese grits with a shrimp, mushroom, spinach and bacon sauce. (At a rumoured 1,000-plus calories, it's worth every bite!)

Forget tacos

You may think you know everything about Mexican food, but there's more to it than beans and tequila shots

Real Mexican cuisine is exotic and varied

ROMINA MCGUINNESS
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Your Friday-night Mexican — a feast of super-size burritos and cheesy nachos, washed down with Coronas — might make you feel like you're transported to Mexico with every morsel.

It's true, most dishes are loosely based around key ingredients including corn, beans, chilli peppers and meats. And tacos, empanadas and burritos form the base of many dishes. But there's a lot more to this intriguing cuisine.

Breakfast usually consists of strong coffee, fruit, eggs and refried beans, or frijoles. Lunch is a hearty meal that can include tortillas, soups (black bean, pumpkin or chicken), rice and meat. Dinner is generally a lighter version of lunch.

You'll find authentic tortillas, quesadillas and tacos on street food stands, stuffed with fresh tomatoes, peppers, white cheese and shredded meats and topped with avocado, pumpkin seeds, coriander and spicy sauces.

Mexicans also enjoy some bizarre but much-loved delicacies.

You can sink your teeth into a crunchy Maguey worm, a speciality throughout the states of Mexico, Hidalgo and Oaxaca. The worms are wrapped in a mixiote, a fleshy maguey leaf, and cooked in a hot pan until they are crispy and golden.

In the central regions you can try fly eggs, or ahuautli, the Mexican answer to caviar. They are cooked with hens' eggs and served in a tortilla.

Ant eggs, or escamoles, are a delicacy best eaten in Mexico City, Hidalgo or Nuevo Leon where they are deep fried in butter.

Across Oaxaca, Veracruz and Yucatan, big, red and juicy Chicatana ants are ground together with chillies, salt and water to prepare tlatonile, a sauce served with pork, or as a crunchy snack.

If you fancy munching on a grasshopper, then head to the states of Puebla, Morelos, Tabasco and Guerrero, where the chapulines are seasoned with lime and salt before they're wrapped in a quesadilla.

If your palate — and stomach — can take it, then head to the south, where you will be able to taste iguana meat, often cooked in stock with tomatoes and chillies.

Games offer up more than sports

Halifax to host the 2011 Canada Games Will also offer a packed roster of music, art, food and fun

Hundreds of athletes from across the country will soon descend on Halifax, dreaming of winning a medal at the 2011 Canada Games.

But for those whose dreams also include a hearty meal, good tunes and some downtime, the Nova Scotia capital is offering up a packed roster of things to see and do.

The best part? There's no need to qualify for these events.

"We all know when people come to Halifax, they want to have a good time," says Chris Morrissey, CEO of the 2011 games, being held Feb. 11-27.

On Feb. 14, organizers will kick off a series of free outdoor concerts outside Halifax City Hall, starting with local rockers Joel Plaskett and The Emergency.

Halifax-based Sloan, Newfoundland's Great Big Sea and St. John's indie rockers Hey Rosetta! are among other headliners on the lineup. City and Colour, rapper Buck 65, Hawskley Worksman and the banjo-toting Old Man Luedecke are also set to take the stage at Celebration Square.

▶ Pier 21

Rocker Matt Mays, who's set to play Feb. 17, says the port city's hospitality, fun-loving attitude and enviable art, theatre and music scene make it the perfect place for the games.

A number of Halifax art galleries, museums and historical sites — mostly located in the downtown core — have also planned special exhibits in celebration of the games.

Pier 21, Canada's immigration museum on the waterfront, will host Lace Up: Canada's Passion for Skating, an exhibit detailing the history of the winter tradition in the country.

A 15-minute walk from Pier 21, the Discovery Centre on Barrington Street allows visitors to — quite literally — get in the game. Starting the first week of February, the centre will host the Canadian debut of PLAY, an exhibit featuring larger-than-life parlour games. Visitors of can play in the midst of huge billiard balls or become a game piece on a massive backgammon board.

After exploring all that Halifax has to offer, rumbling stomachs will be thankful for Dine Around, part of the annual Savour Food and Wine festival.

A wide selection of restaurants, serving up everything from seafood to gourmet pizza, will offer prix-fixe menus during Dine Around, which runs from Feb. 1-28.

Bob Blumer is a glutton for the gastro

New cookbook offers epic stories

EMILY RICHARDS
FOOD@METRONEWS.CA

Bob Blumer is a name Canadians know as a fun-loving foodie who is most at home with his surreal cooking.

He showcases exactly that in his latest cookbook, Glutton for Punishment Signature Recipes, Epic Stories and Surreal Etiquette, through recipes like the Lamb Cupcake. It has a rich lamb flavour with a mashed potato topping that looks like it belongs in a bakery window.

It's also this type of recipe that showcases Blumer's abilities and how he takes advantage of them.

Preparation:

1. Season lamb with salt and pepper and coat in flour. In a skillet, heat 3 tbsp (45 mL) of the oil over medium high heat; add lamb shanks and sear, about two minutes per side. Move to roasting pan and wipe out skillet.
2. Add 2 tbsp (30 mL) of oil to pan and heat over medium heat. Sauté one of the chopped onions, carrots and celery and half of garlic until just beginning to brown. Add chicken stock, stirring and bring to the boil. Pour over lamb and add wine. Sprinkle with half of the rosemary and thyme. Cover with foil and braise in 300 F (160 C) oven for 3 1/2 hours, uncover and cook until lamb is browned and falling off the bone tender, about 30 minutes. Remove lamb and pull meat off the bones; reserve meat. Strain braising juices and separate fat from juices.
3. Transfer juice to a small pot and simmer and reduce by about three quarters until it is a thick demi-glaze; set aside.
4. Steam potatoes over boiling water until very tender, 15 minutes. Using a ricer, mash potatoes. In bowl, blend potatoes with cream, butter, and season with salt. Using fine side of a grater; grate 2 tbsp (30 mL) of the beet. Set aside.
5. In a skillet, heat 2 tbsp (30 mL) of oil over medium heat and caramelize remaining chopped onion and garlic until golden brown; set aside.
6. Stem remaining rosemary and thyme; chop finely. In bowl, mix lamb meat, 1/3 cup (75 mL) of the demi glaze, onion mixture, bread crumbs, eggs and rosemary and thyme.
7. Line muffin tin with 8 paper liners. With cooking spray, spray interior of liners. Spoon lamb mixture into liners. Bake on 300 F (160 C) until cakes are set, yet moist, about 14 minutes.
8. Reheat potatoes. When hot, blend in grated beet until pink. Use a piping bag to ice the lamb cupcakes with the potato mixture. GLUTTON FOR PLEASURE - BOB BLUMER

So, who are you?

Winging a job interview when you're looking for work could cost you a job Doing the same as the interviewer could cost you the job you have

DREW HINSHAW
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Job interviewers who freestyle their 20-minute chat with a prospective employee throw the company dice – plus a year's salary and benefits – at the most confident, more often than capable candidate, hiring experts warn. Worse, they risk vamping their way into a courthouse drama.

"You could ask an innocent question and end up with a lawsuit."

President Laura DeCarlo of Career Directors International cautions, "Because of so many legal issues, someone who has liability should probably look at becoming involved in a human resource organization like the Society for Human Resource Management."

Aside from a professional membership card, they should, at the very least, "have a plan."

"Don't go in there thinking 'I'm just going to ask them to tell me about themselves,'" she stresses. "Have about 30 questions."

If you prep your interview like a police investigation – full of confrontational, tightly-focused questions – you could provoke nothing but awkward, stilted answers.

The jobseeker on the other end of the table ought to be made comfortable, Boston-based career coach Leenie Glickman notes – and if you really want to fathom the person you might be working alongside, you'd do better to spark a naturalistic conversation than a narrow pop quiz.

"All of your questions should be open," she suggests. "Like 'Tell me about, tell me about, tell be about."

"If you want to learn about the candidate, ask them to give you an example," DeCarlo concurs. "Ask 'Tell me about a time when you had to face a challenge.' Or ask 'Describe your favourite project.'"

To keep to the conversation from drifting toward irrelevance, figure out before the interview what you're primarily looking for: a qualified candidate with full command of a certain skill, or an easy-going but go-getting sidekick who would fit well in your company's midst.

PRIVACY PAINS

Workplace Law

DANIEL LUBLIN
IS AN EMPLOYMENT LAWYER WITH WHITTEN & LUBLIN LLP.
DAN@CANADAEMPLOYMENTLAWYER.COM

Many employees believe that they have an absolute right to privacy while at work. They are wrong.

Today, employees freely use technology at work without appreciating that they may be providing their employers access to their own private data. Trusting that employers will refrain from monitoring readily available private information is reckless.

The issue of privacy rights in the workplace is a developing area of Canadian law. Recent cases suggest that employees are entitled to have some expectation to privacy at work; however, the extent of these privacy rights remains blurred.

In one case, the court found that the installation of a "secret camera" in an employee's office was an invasion of her privacy. The court found that the employer's conduct amounted to a breach of contract, justifying the employee's resignation. It then awarded her wrongful dismissal damages. However, the court sent the following warning: had a plausible explanation been provided for the "secret camera", the intrusion may have been acceptable.

Employees do have privacy rights at work. However, these rights must be balanced against employers' legal and business interests to monitor its workplace. Courts will be reluctant to overstep an employer's right to police its own workplace, unless it can be shown that an intrusion was uncalled for.

Guidelines

- Assume you are always being monitored at work – if you do not wish others to see personal data, don't access it at work.
- Familiarize yourself with existing company policies regarding the use of technologies at work.
- Immediately protest a suspected intrusion and seek specialized advice before taking any further action.

A better space to ace?

Finding a third-space to work in is vital, experts say

Over the past five years, "co-operative learning" has become a buzz phrase in higher education, with most institutions scrambling to expand group study into nearly every classroom.

But as new study theories abound, what about the actual physical space where students study?

Although there is far less research in this area, many educators are strong proponents of finding a "third space" — aside from your couch, office or classroom — where students can devote nearly 100 per cent of their attention to the task at hand.

The very act of creating the space can help to develop good habits.

"There's some real value in ritualizing getting into the study mode," says Lynn Beck, dean of education at University of the Pacific. "Having a specific space dedicated to that is key. One of the things we do know from research is that productivity really drops when we're multitasking."

"Just having the book or computer open does not mean that you're really engaged with the material."
LYNN BECK
UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC

Professor Joseph Murray at Bucknell University has studied how we study for over 10 years. He is a strong proponent of tailoring the study environment for each course. For instance, if you will be using a bluebook in your exam and will take the test along with a large class, that is precisely what you want to mimic: Study in a crowded library, writing longhand in a notebook.

"Research suggests that a trial run or a dress rehearsal significantly increases test results for students," says Murray. "And we know that the closer that dress-rehearsal matches the actual physical attributes of the test, the better students tend to do on it." METRO

Brands get personal

BOOK REVIEW

CRAIG LUND
WORK@METRONEWS.CA

When it comes to marketing, the concept of "brand" was a pretty consistent entity, in that it was the product of the company that owned and produced it.

The look, feel and quality were wholly controlled by the owner, and if that brand was managed properly, huge profits could be reaped... ala Coke Cola, McDonalds and Buckleys.

That of course is the old school reality.

Fast forward to 2011, and authors Sean Moffit and Mike Dover describe the new reality of brands in their book Wikibrands. According to Moffit and Dover, "The Litmus test for a thriving business in this market place is 'Does your brand deliver genuine participation.'"

With media fragmentation and the ever expanding catalogue of channels, digital being the key culprit, the former business approach of utilizing Mass Advertising to build a brand... that is to constantly bombard consumers with a consistent and controlled message, is now defunct.

You have to understand the magnitude of this shift. Take for example the historical development of a mega brand like Coke. "Coca-Cola corporate lore claims that if the company suddenly lost all of its physical assets, it could get funding to rebuild the entire enterprise using only the power of brand as collateral."

While this may be true, chances are a brand born today could not achieve the same results without being put in the hands of its users, and modeled and evolved based on customer feedback and interaction... Facebook is a case in point.

Moffit and Dover don't have to stretch too far to demonstrate how effective this approach is, pointing out how companies like Starbucks who have created dedicated platforms for customers to contribute.

"Starbucks has more than one million Twitter followers...and has attracted 100,000 user generated contributions to its MyStarbucks Idea.com site."

Wikibrands has some tremendous research behind it, making this book more than just a tomb of interesting case studies, but a call to action.

NAPLS

Do You:

- Feel suspicious or paranoid?
- Get confused about what is real or imaginary?
- Have trouble concentrating or thinking clearly?
- Have problems with social activities, school or work?
- Hear sounds or voices that aren't really there?
- Have trouble communicating clearly?
- Feel that you are not in control of your own thoughts?
- See things that aren't really there?

If you have any of these symptoms and are between 12 and 30 years of age, you may be eligible to participate in the NAPLS study.

The NAPLS study is trying to learn more about what happens biologically and clinically when a person develops a psychotic disorder. Changes in mood, thinking and behavior may be the early signs that you or someone you know are at risk for psychosis.

If you are eligible for NAPLS, participating in this study will give you the opportunity to receive extensive mental health assessments and brain imaging.

Flames continue to gain ground

Pick up where they left off with a win in return from all-star break

Rene Bourque scored the only goal in a shootout as the Calgary Flames rallied to beat the Nashville Predators 3-2 last night for their fifth straight victory.

The Flames trailed 1-0 heading into the third period and Matt Stajan and Cory Sarich scored to help Calgary force overtime.

In the shootout, Bourque slipped the puck under Pekka Rinne's leg to start. Alex Tanguay lost the puck, then Rinne stopped Olli Jokinen. But Miikka Kiprusoff stopped Martin Erat and Cody Franson.

David Legwand had the last chance to extend the shootout but couldn't solve Kiprusoff.

Patric Hornqvist had a power-play goal for Nashville. Martin Erat also scored and Sergei Kostitsyn added two assists.

The Flames continue their rally in the Western Conference, having grabbed at least a point in 10 of the past 11 games.

It felt as if the Predators were playing for the shootout with a 6-2 record in them coming into the game. Rinne, the NHL's third star for January, got Nashville there by stopping four shots in overtime, with his best a stick save on Jokinen with 2:20 left and then smothering a slapshot by Stajan 15 seconds later.

The Predators seemed in control most of the game. Erat scored his seventh from the slot, tipping in a nice pass from Kostitsyn from the left circle at 7:43 of the first past Kiprusoff's glove.

Stajan tied it 1-1 at 2:57 in the third with his fourth of the season.

Nashville took the lead back with a goal from one of the NHL's worst power-plays. They came in ranked 28th. Hornqvist scored his 16th this season with a wrist shot from the slot at 4:56 — just 28 seconds after Jokinen went to the penalty box for tripping.

It didn't last long as Sarich scored from the right circle at 9:04 to tie it 2-2. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Storm strands Raps, forces Blues off the ice

A monster storm that's cut a frigid path across the U.S. left the Toronto Raptors stranded in Indianapolis for a second straight night.

The Raptors were scheduled to fly to Atlanta on Monday evening following their 104-93 loss to the Pacers, but that flight was cancelled, sending the team back to the hotel.

The Raptors hoped to leave yesterday, but that flight was also cancelled after the team sat for nearly five hours on the plane.

Meanwhile in St. Louis, the Blues saw plenty of snow and ice but no Avalanche.

The Blues' game against the Colorado Avalanche yesterday night was postponed because of the storm that threatened to leave about a third of the U.S. covered in ice and snow.

A makeup date has not been set for the game, which would have been the first since the all-star break for both teams. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Injured Steeler has sights set on Sunday

Maurkice Pouncey still expects to play in the Super Bowl.

"Most definitely," the Pittsburgh Steelers' injured centre said yesterday. "I feel positive right now."

Pouncey is dealing with a high left ankle sprain, suffered in Pittsburgh's 24-19 victory over the New York Jets in the AFC championship game.

"I'm walking around pretty good today," the rookie Pro Bowl selection said. "I couldn't do anything in the cast. Now that I'm in the walking boot, there's a lot that I can do now."

Pouncey did not practise last week, and coach Mike Tomlin has said he is "not on a running clock" until today — the team's first practice before the Super Bowl.

"He's going to give me pretty much all the way until the last day," Pouncey said.

▶ Clay Matthews wears a Cheesehead in Arlington, Texas yesterday.

Matthews more than just a name

Coming from a family that pumps out NFL players, Packers LB wants to leave his own mark

Even though Clay Matthews ended up in the family business, he's determined to outplay the expectations that come along with having a Hall of Fame last name.

Going into Sunday's Super Bowl matchup with Pittsburgh, the Green Bay Packers' outside linebacker with the flowing mane and famous surname has become one of the most ferocious pass rushers in the game only two years into his NFL career.

His quick transition shouldn't be a surprise. His father Clay Jr., uncle Bruce — a Hall of Famer — and grandfather Clay Sr. all played in the NFL.

"That guy was born to play football," Steelers coach Mike Tomlin said.

And he isn't even the last in the bloodline, as little brother Casey just finished his senior season as a linebacker at Oregon and is likely to be drafted.

Speaking at the Packers' Super Bowl media day yesterday, Matthews was in a playful mood as he took just as many questions about his long, flowing hair — which he wore pulled back for the occasion — as he did about football. At one point, he even covered up his locks with a cheesehead.

But when asked about his family, he turned serious.

Matthews appreciates being born into a football legacy, but the idea of establishing his own identity is important, too.

"I was very privileged as a youth to have a father who played in the league, and have so much family history and be blessed with all that I was given in this life," Matthews said. "But yeah, I've kind of had to work to kind of get out of the shadow of my father and family or whatnot, and think I'm doing a good job at that." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Keys for the situation

Up for grabs with the Boss is the dealer-installed TracKey system.

The black key is for street driving, while the red key is used for days at the track. The latter provides a more aggressive tune, complete with a raggedy competition idle as well as "launch control."

Ford does not recommend red-key use on the street as the throttle response is hair-trigger.

Visual cues

The Boss wears the historic "C-stripe" along each side, a blacked-out hood scoop and roof and front and rear spoilers.

Inside, there's a special Boss steering wheel, suede seat inserts, or optional Recaro-brand bucket seats that are identical to those installed on the current Mustang GT500.

High-revving horsepower

Using the 5.0-litre V8-powered Mustang GT as the starting point, the Boss gets a less-restrictive intake system and revised camshafts as its main tweaks.

Output is increased to 444 horsepower from the GT's 412, but peak torque is down 10 pound-feet from the GT's 390. This is not an uncommon trade-off for additional high-revving horsepower. The engine is hooked to a close-ratio six-speed manual transmission along with a heavier duty clutch.

BASE PRICE: $48,000

▶ Yes, the Boss 302 has stripes and different wheels than the standard GT, but unlike many other retro-Mustang models that Ford has put out, the Boss actually has a mission: to be as close to a legal race car for the street as you'll get anywhere.

This Boss can do the road or the track

WHEELBASE MEDIA

Why is the Boss 302 back?

Aside from pressing all the right nostalgia hot buttons and providing enthusiasts with a high-performance car that's good for the road or the track, the real reason might be the engine.

Without a "302" there could never be a Boss 302 in the first place.

The new Boss wasn't possible until the 2011 model year when the 412-horsepower 5.0-litre V8 (302 cubic inches) replaced the 4.6 in the GT model. Thus the road was paved for the revival of the Boss 302.

But just what kind of nostalgia are we talking about, here?

This legendary race-bred model helped set the Sports Car Club of America's Trans Am racing series on fire in 1969 and '70, providing spirited competition for the rest of the Ponycar pack from General Motors, Chrysler, and American Motors.

Fast forward four decades. In early 2011, two versions of the new Boss 302 will arrive to do the original proud: a fully dressed dual-purpose street/track edition; and a track-specific (but not track only) "Laguna Seca Package" model.

▶ The already excellent Mustang interior is highlighted with extra instrumentation and grippy seats to keep drivers planted behind the wheel during acrobatics on track days.

▶ The 412-horsepower 5.0-litre V8 is already quite an engine, but there was apparently room to grow. In the Boss 302, it puts out 444 horsepower.

Aiding traction on the Boss are Pirelli tires mounted on 19-inch-diameter wheels that are wider by half an inch in the back to accommodate the wider rubber. Ford claims that skid-pad grip with this combo exceeds 1.0 g of lateral acceleration, which is in supercar territory.

WINTER CAR WASHING AN INVIGORATING CHALLENGE

Auto Pilot
MIKE GOETZ
DRIVE@ METRONEWS.CA

Trying to keep your car clean during winter is a noble yet tragic calling. Those that are called must persevere in the face of certain defeat.

We tip our toques to them. These winter-washers only have fleeting respites from the enemy, but at least they have respites — and their dignity. The rest of us just hang our heads in shame as we approach our salt-encrusted chariots.

But maybe you suffered long enough the slings and arrows of outrageous salt stains on your pant cuffs and black overcoat, and are finally ready to make a "clean" start.

Well good on you then, and to help you in your noble cause we present these winter car cleaning tips, gleamed from recent conversations with a couple of battle-tested experts.

Winter adds two obvious wrinkles to the car washing exercise — freezing temperatures and salt.

David Lee is the owner-operator of L.A. Detail, which shines up vehicles for many national accounts, including Toyota Canada and Mazda Canada. If you're hand washing your vehicle he cautions to keep an eye out for when the water starts to ice up on your vehicle or on your brush.

"You don't want to be scrubbing frozen grit and salt over your car," notes Lee. He adds that you are probably better off to lay off any mitt or brushwork entirely during winter, and just let soap and water do their thing.

If fact, he recommends no-touch or soft-cloth automatic washes, for the convenience, for the non-scratch safety factor, and for the better job they do on vehicle undersides.

Either way, as soon as you're done, he advises to get out some terry cloths and wipe down the door and trunk jams, so that ice doesn't freeze them shut. To keep door locks from freezing up, Lee also suggests that winter-washers apply lock de-icer as soon as possible post-wash.

"And while you have the cloth out, don't forget the wipers," says Lee. "Grit and salt will build up on that top layer of the wiper. So wipe it clean and wipe it dry. Same thing for the wiper arm. They need to be flexible to work, but after a car wash they can freeze in one position."

After the wash also be sure to set your HVAC system to defrost, which utilizes the car's air-con system to remove the extra moisture the wash has just introduced into the car (otherwise you will immediately "fog" up).

Reg Pizzimenti is a well-known anti-rust advocate. His auto refinishing shop in Scarborough, Ont., was one of the pioneers of "wet" rust proofing treatments. If your vehicle received such an annual treatment, Pizzimenti advises not to pressure wash the underside — leave the oil there to do its job.

MICHAEL GOETZ/FOR METRO NEWS

▶ Don't be afraid to get rid of salt build-up on your car. It will certainly turn that frown upside down.

But he's all for weekly body panel and wheel-well rinsing during winter: "Salt doesn't really hurt paint. Humidity and condensation makes unprotected metal rust. Salt accelerates the process."

For that reason, he suggests getting salt off your vehicle whenever you can, especially as every vehicle has its share of rust "entry points."

"Pay attention to any paint nicks, gaps, seams, and where parts are bolted onto the body. These are the entry points for rust. It gets under the paint and grows from there."

Both Pizzimenti and Lee caution about getting too caught up over winter cleanliness — it's an unwinnable battle that will just drive you nuts.

Lee says save your energy for the major spring cleanup, when your efforts will have some staying power, and give you more satisfaction.

And don't wait too long. By early spring there will more salt and more moisture on the road than any time during the winter.

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 If you have to change plans last minute and let someone down today, so be it. If you don't make a big deal of it, chances are he or she won't, either.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Your enthusiasm for a work project may be undiminished, but you are putting in rather a lot of time and energy for so little in return. It may not yet be time to make a change, but start thinking about it anyway.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 There are many things going right in your life, so why make a fuss about the one little thing that is going wrong? Your mind creates your reality, so the less attention you give it, the less it will matter.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 If you've been spending money like it is going out of fashion, it might be wise to curb your extravagance over the next few days. Those shiny things in shop windows may look lovely, but you can't have them all.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Where your work is concerned, you need to focus on quality rather than quantity. That may mean having to cut back on some of your less important commitments. Do less but do it better.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 You may be feeling on top of the world, physically, at the moment but there is still a danger you might take on too much. Focus your energy on what matters the most to you.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 It's not often you lose your sense of balance, but the approaching new moon is having a strange effect on your emotions. Don't be surprised to find yourself happy one moment, and even happier the next.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Family members may be difficult to get along with right now, but there's no point making an issue of it. Pretend that everything is okay with the world. They won't argue that.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 A sudden lack of cash could force you to cut back on social plans, but that's not so bad. If you watch what you spend today, you'll have enough to go wild tomorrow.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Someone who has helped you in the past won't be there for you today and you will feel the sense of loss. It will also make you realize you've been relying on him or her far too much.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You may be on a high right now, but not everyone is as fortunate. Make allowances for those who seem unable to find joy. In fact, make it your mission to cheer them up.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 If you're smart, you won't believe everything you hear today because there are tall stories being told. Others may not be trying to mislead you but someone has mislead them. SALLY BROMPTON
